

it is vital that the environmental and social risks of increased mineral demand are managed carefully while also safeguarding supply chains

This will require long-term, coherent policies and coordination and alliances with global partners.

Enabling policies will be

---